Aviation Coverage, Liability and Litigation

Strong and Hanni's Aviation Group has substantial experience in representing aircraft manufacturers, owners, and pilots in civil litigation. We deal with the unique issues which arise in aviation claims and insurance coverage and offer broad trial experience and knowledge of state and local courts and judges.

Roger Bullock, with over thirty years of experience and a veteran of numerous jury trials in federal and state courts, heads this area of Aviation Law for the firm. His team includes attorneys, legal assistants, and staff with specialized skills to save time and money and get results.

We have dealt with cases involving challenging issues including:

- Witness contact and evidence preservation
- Identification and development of expert witness opinions
- Metallurgy evaluation and fracture analysis
- Design of aircraft and component parts
- Insurance coverage issues unique to aviation claims
- Coordination with federal agencies for investigation and evidence
- Application of federal aviation statutes and regulations
- Preemption under international law and treaties
- Complex civil procedure such as removal, venue, jurisdiction, and conflict of laws
