Products Liability

Strong & Hanni's Products Liability Group has a long history of working with numerous entities within the distribution chain, including local, regional, national and international manufacturers, retailers, distributors, and their insurers in resolving products liability claims. We have successfully represented clients in products liability cases involving farm and construction machinery, automobiles, tires, toys, sporting and recreational equipment, power tools, environmental pollution products, chemicals, aircraft, class actions, and mass torts. Our lawyers are published in the national product liability publications and are recognized for the knowledge and experience.

The attorneys in our Products Liability Group are experienced trial attorneys. Many of our lawyers have been recognized and honored by state and national defense organizations. With extensive knowledge of the court system and products liability law, we can counsel clients on the best resolution for their case. Due to the impact that such claims can have on a company and its products, our Products Liability Group works to resolve cases as quickly and efficiently as possible.

The Products Liability Group also offers clients advice in all aspects of products liability business including product development, regulation, and prevention of claims. Strong & Hanni has helped clients develop safeguards to assist manufacturers and insurers to minimize their exposure for products liability claims. We have the experience, knowledge, and resources to work closely with clients and successfully handle products liability issues. Our national association with US Law allows Strong & Hanni to coordinate product liability legal services with experienced product liability lawyers throughout the network covering more than 45 states and the World.
